

Northeast Organic Farming Association of Vermont's Impact & Gratitude Report 2025

Coming together with clarity and purpose

Guiding Values

TRUST & INTEGRITY

in everything we do.

CARE & RECIPROCITY

between people and the planet.

JUSTICE & WELLBEING

for all.

Dear Friend,

We're living in a time of challenge, experiencing a breakdown of the institutions and systems that govern our lives. But we aren't looking to return to the status quo, and we know that in crisis there is enormous opportunity. This is the moment we have to nourish our vision of a truly thriving, well-fed, verdant future. Now is the time to tend farm-strong, rooted communities that will support the long-term wellbeing of this place and our people.

We asked two key questions over the course of 2025: What can we do together that we can't do alone? How can we meet this moment to plant seeds for the future we long for—one in which everyone is well fed, the earth is healed, and farms are thriving? Despite the chaos we're surrounded by, we have been coming together with clarity and purpose, building towards the world we need and deserve.

Your support, solidarity, and care make a difference. On farms, at dinner tables, in the State House, and across communities around the state, we are seeing the impact of the NOFA-VT community in action.

YOU helped farmers recover from the impacts of a devastating statewide drought; stood up to demand that all must be fed and safe, especially the most marginalized among us; built power for long-term investments in small-scale farms in the Vermont Legislature; supported climate adaptation and resilience on farms and in communities; fought back against the dismantling of federal systems that support farmers and farmworkers; tended relationships and cultivated collective joy at dinner tables; and so much more.

We know we all have a role to play in this work, and through this year of challenge, your resounding answer to our questions was: TOGETHER IS THE WAY FORWARD!

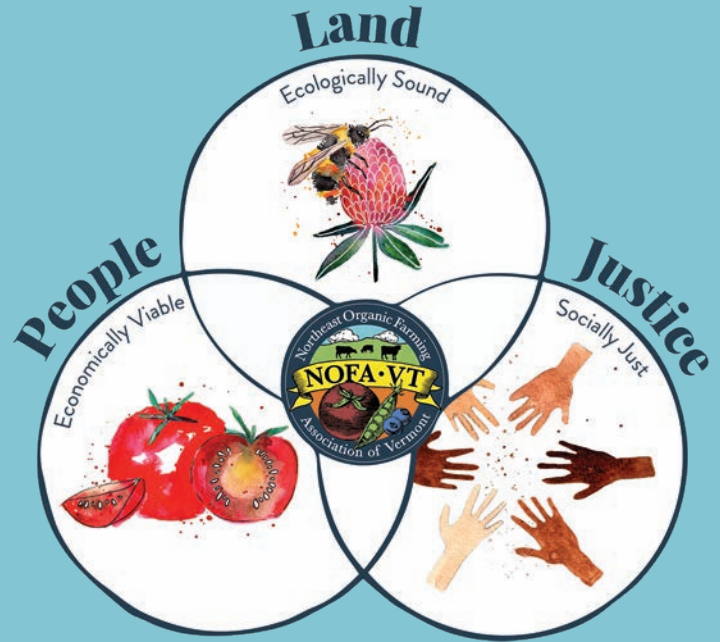

We're grateful that you've chosen to dedicate your time, energy, and resources to help build a thriving agricultural future for all of us in Vermont. Onward, together!

Gratefully,

Grace Oedel, NOFA-VT Executive Director

Our mission is to promote organic practices to build an economically viable, ecologically sound, and socially just Vermont agricultural system that benefits all living things.

I now have more physical resources to better care for my crops, as well as more planning resources to help me anticipate climate challenges rather than just react to them. It was great to have someone else's eyes on my farm from an outsider perspective, and now I feel like I have the capacity to plan for risk factors.

Climate Adaptation
Planning Program

Supporting Social, Economic, and Climate Resilience on Farms and in Communities

- We invested nearly $500,000 in the short-term drought recovery and the long-term wellbeing of farms (and the communities they impact), awarding 37 farms with Resilience Grants, 12 farms with Vermont Family Farmer of the Month Awards, and 45 farms with Farmer Emergency Fund grants.
- Despite federal divestment from Vermont's farms, we awarded $95,000 in climate-adaptation implementation grants to 19 farms that were in the final stages of approval for the USDA Climate Smart funds when that program was cancelled.
- We provided a wide range of direct services to 171 farms, including one-on-one climate adaptation planning, business plan development, marketing assistance, and technical assistance focused on organic practices and certification. We also expanded the number of farms receiving mentorship on organic practices and started a new Agroforestry Cohort peer-learning opportunity.
- Through organic certification, we supported farms to adopt and utilize organic practices. Vermont Organic Farmers certified 711 producers and processors committed to soil health, biodiversity, and animal welfare, representing 155,699 acres and more than $458 million in sales.

Deepening Agricultural Engagement & Community Connections

- We supported innovation in the food system and demonstrated that equitably increasing access to healthy food can also benefit the planet and farmers by piloting a project to expand Vermont-grown grains and locally-produced bakery products in Vermont school meals.
- We hosted our 43rd annual Winter Conference. Nearly 800 people engaged with organic farming, learned from food system experts and innovators from around the country, and deepened their community connections.
- We welcomed the opportunity to gather, build community, and learn from inspiring farmers for the future we want to see while celebrating on their farms. We brought almost 700 people to our on-farm summer events, including pizza socials, workshops, and the 10th annual Farmer Olympics.

- We built new interest in supporting local, organic farms by reaching over a million consumers in Vermont and in neighboring states by distributing a magazine-style print publication with stories and information about organic farmers, video featurettes of Vermont Organic dairy farms, in-store ads at grocery stores promoting organic, and digital ads encouraging people to seek out Vermont Organic products.

Randy George, co-owner of Red Hen Baking in Middlesex, leads a tour for NOFA-VT's Farm to Institution team and Vermont School Nutrition Professionals who are working to increase local grain production to support state-wide efforts to increase local school purchasing.

What's more powerful than knowing where your food came from? It doesn't matter what kids are going to go off and do when they get out of high school; they're all going to need to eat. And they're going to be better citizens if they know where their food comes from.

We believe that high-quality food is a right, not a privilege. It is important to us that community members from a wide demographic can feel like our farm is accessible to them without having to compromise on what we feel our CSA shares are worth.

Increasing Food Security & Inclusivity

- Through our food security programs (including Crop Cash (Plus) and Farm Share), we supported over 2,700 food-insecure individuals and leveraged over $910,000 in income directly to Vermont farms.
- We successfully advocated for $450,000 in State funding to support local farms and allow food-insecure Vermonters to access local food through our food security programs. This investment shows the state's commitment to achieving food security and is a step toward securing more stable funding for these programs.
- We adjusted our Farm Share Program application to make it more equitable and transparent with input from an advisory committee of farmers, Farm Share recipients, community members, and service providers.
- In November, when the federal government shutdown impacted the disbursement of SNAP funds, we advocated for the State to take action while also acting quickly to ensure that folks could still access local food by providing customers who needed help buying food with $20 in Crop Cash Plus, even if they did not have SNAP benefits to spend.

“As a single parent, balancing rising costs has been challenging, and Crop Cash and Crop Cash Plus have allowed me to stretch our budget while still prioritizing local produce.

Working for Systemic Change

- Over 100 people attended our series of Community Action Workshops, building power for The Farm & Forestry Operations Special Security Fund (S.60), a bill to help farms recover from extreme weather. It passed the Senate unanimously, setting the stage for further movement in the 2026 legislative session.
- Members advocated for investments and policies that support farmers, farmworkers, and rural communities through over 1,000 individual actions, including signing petitions, writing letters, making calls, and testifying before legislative committees.
- We challenged threats to Vermont's food and farming system through the legal system. With Protect Democracy, we represented the needs of our farmers in a lawsuit against the reorganization of the federal government that threw once-reliable support structures into chaos. We also stepped up to help the state defend Vermont's Climate Superfund Law in two lawsuits trying to strike down this first-in-the-nation law, highlighting the ways that farms are unfairly shouldering the burden of climate change.
- As a leading organization in the Vermont Food Security Coalition, we advanced strategies in the Vermont Food Security Roadmap to 2035, an intersectional plan to achieve lasting food security for all by 2035.

A strong turnout of farmers, farmworkers, and food system advocates, wielding signs and giant spoons in honor of the Parable of the Long-Handled Spoons, turned out at the NOFA-VT Farmer Day of Action at the Middlebury USDA offices in the spring of 2025 to speak out against cuts to vital USDA programming.

One of NOFA-VT’s perennial strengths is its commitment to grassroots collective action. Together, we set the stage, hone in on the issues, and raise the questions that catalyze us to get involved and generate approaches that work in our communities.

NOFA-VT empowers ‘we the people’ to become part of the solution, as we stand shoulder to shoulder together—listening, guiding, supporting, and inspiring.

In today’s tumultuous world, it’s so refreshing to be part of a larger group, such as NOFA-VT, that steps up to tackle meaningful work.

Smaller groups of determined folks truly can make a difference, starting at the grassroots level.

We believe that following an organic standard helps us to support the health of our farm which relates to the health in our community. We also want our crops to be the best quality, and we want to be held to a high standard. Organic certification gives us something we can rely on which aligns with our values and helps consumers know what they can expect from our farming practices and the quality in the products they purchase from us.

Margrit Malouf

Chantry Farm, Brattleboro, participant in NOFA-VT's Climate Adaptation Planning and Transition to Organic Partnership Programs
(Became certified in 2025)

We envision a future in which Vermont is home to thriving farms and agriculturally rooted communities that support the long-term well-being of the earth and all its people. Together, we are building bridges to a stronger tomorrow.
